LAW REPORT

March 17, 1955

Justice Berinson then dealt with the appellant's argument that in the light of the decit. Sion in Cr. A. 182/85 (Peaking 12/344) the court should have found that Goldstein had received control of the sewing-machine jointly with his two associates. He explained the differences between the previous case and the current one, pointing out that in the present case the rule as laid down in a R. v. Watson (115 L.T. 150) was applicable: that acting as an intermediary in disposing of siolen property, while knowing the property to have been stolen, without at any time having been in possession of the property did not constitute the offence of receiving.

Mr. Bach has further argued that, even if the District Court had been correct in holding that the respondent had not received" the machine within the meaning of section 710, but had merely assisted the thieves to sell it nevertheless since the lister had "taken upon themselves, either alone or jointly with any other person, the disposition" of the machine, they were guilty of an offence under section 310, and the respondent, therefore was equally guilty of the same offence in that he had assisted them. While describing this argument as both interesting and striking. Justice Berlizson nevertheless, after hearing Mr. Hagier's reply, decided to dismiss it, holding that even if it were presumed that the thieves had "taken upon themselves" the sale of the machine, it had not been found in the District Court that the respondent had done had been to help the offenders to dispose of the machine, but not that he had undertaken either to sell it himself or jointly with the others. In order to be able to say, continued Justice Berlisson, that he had une is that the respondent had been to help the offenders to dispose of the machine, but not that he had one; but the negotiations and the completion of the sale had been effected by the others. The respondent, therefore, at no time had the right (insofar as the term "right" could be applied to suchers the offenders to dispose of the ma our. Is guilty of a misdemeanour."

In his defence, Goldstein claimed that he had been given the ILS in repayment of a debt—
a claim which was accepted
by the Court. Judge A. Malchi held that he had merely acted as a go-between for the purposes of disposing of the machine, but that it had not been proved that the machine had at any time been in his actual or constructive possession.

Mr. G. Bach Assistant State
Attorney appeared for the Attorney General. The respondent appeared in person, but in view of the legal questions involved
the President asked Mr. Y.
Hagler, who was present in court for another case, if he would consent to defend the respondent Mr. Hagler agreed.

Judgment

Judgment
The appeal was dismissed on the day of the hearing and statement of reasons deferred. Justice Berinson, who delivered the reasoned judgment of the Court, dismissed Mr. Bach's contention that the respondent had received the ILS as remuneration for his services in helping to dispose of the sewing-machine. There was no reason for interfering with the finding of the District Court, and in any case the question was not whether the respondent had received any remuneration for what he had done or not but Judgment

The Jerusalem Poet learns that immediately after the General Zionists announced their fithdrawal from the coalition, the Progressive Party considered the possibility of a coalition with the General Zionists and the Histadrut parties which would be headed by Mr. Daniel Auster, a Progressive and a former mayor. Contact was made with the Histadrut and General Zionist parties to see if Mr. Auster would have their unreserved support as mayor. The parties had not yet replied by last night.

Mr. Auster, who is not at present a councillor, could rejoin the coalition if one of the two Progressive councillors. Dr. P.J. Jacobi, or Mr. Yitzhak Nenner, resigned to make room for him.

share in maintaining religious services. About 100 settlements which do not have rabbis of their own are visited by rabbis from neighbouring villages one in two weeks.

Religious services in immigrant settlements were no less important than material needs, Dr. Warbaftig declared. More than one village had disintegrated because the settlers missed a synagogue a ritual bath, a rabbi, and religious guidance.

The Ministry had founded 188 places of worship in the past year, but there were many towns which did not have a synagogue worthy of the name — Beersheba, Ramle Aere Jaffa, and southern Jerusalem. Up to the end of 1864, close to Illim, from the Development Budgets had been spent for the building of synagogues, but it was clear that the hunden fall mainly on the public.

RANGOON Wednesday (Reuter)

Burmese forces have captured the Chinese Nationalist guerrilla outpost of Mong Yawn, about 50 kilometres south of Mongshat in the southern Shan States, it was learned today.

The capture virtually trapped the remaining Kuomintang forces estimated at 2,000 in a 235 square kilometre area sear the Thalland border between three groups of the Burmese army.

Thai forces are reported to be patrolling their side of the border to prevent the Chinese escaping into the province of Chiengmal as they did last year.

The Chinese are remnants of the Nationalist refugee force which was evacuated to Formous last year tender a U.N. order which they have refused to obey.

The special appreciation of Israel will go forth to Dr. Joseph Schwartz, who, on the point of his well-earned retirement from office, with his successor in the UJA already groomed, now finds himself charged with a dual responsibility. He has a long record of service to the Jewish people, first in the Joint Distribution Committee and then at the UJA. He combines inspired leadership with a sense of moderation, and will need to exercise these qualities in full measure.

The heads of the UJA who now take on the additional responsibility for the sale of Bonds, are only a c t in g in the spirit of the Economic Conference in Jerusalem in 1950. At that time the four pillars of American Jewish aid to Israel were set up. They were, the Loan by means of Bonds; the UJA, and public and private Investment. But there has been a strange and disheartening aloofness from the Bonds on the part of the wealthier and "Americanized," partly because of preoccupation with UJA, partly out of a dislike of the new sales methods which the launching of Bonds called for in a fresh and admittedly difficult field.

After an "agonizing reappraisal" of the situation, Mr. Eshkol came away with an assurance that both free and investment dollars will now be provided, practically by the same leadership. It is to be hoped he will be justified in the event and that the new leadership will not be satisfied unless the job done for the Bonds is a good deal more than a journeyman's stint, and that the Montor group will not long remain in the wilder-

STARTING APRIL 1, 1965 the National Insurance Institute will rrivers' pensions to the widows and orphans of decrased persons rried insurance for a period of at least one year before their dea It is up to the insured to safeguard their life insurance benefits

The National Insurance Law applies to every resident of the State born after November 18, 1836 who is at least 18 years of age and who was a resident at the time of the Law's going into-effect. National Insurance is compulsory; that means that a person cannot declare that he or she does not wish to be insured, and thus freeing him — or herself from the obligation provided by the Law. The only exception to this is the housewife — to whom the legal obligation does not apply.

a moment and said that unfortunately there did not seem to be one in Israel, but if it wasn't too far away she could go to Iran or Iraq, where instructions were being given.

A READER tells us that he likes the idea of "What Price Is Real" as a book-title in place of "What Price Israel" which is rather a stupid title anymony, as it would take a great deal of oalculating. He has also presented us with a bill from B. Altmon & Ca. one of New York's most distinguished stores, which he received after buying Weismann's biography. It reads "I Trial and Terror... $2.49." were too high up for his daughter to have made them. There was a young woman with the landlord, who said excitedly
"It's the milkman, I am sure.
Ours always writes the bill
on the wall too." By this time both the wiles had come out too. They said it was true.
They paid the milk once a week. When asked for the bill, the milkman screwed up his eyes, pointed about an inch over his right eye said "It is all here," and produced the correct answer. Then, after they had shut the door he apparently crossed off that week's reckoning on the wall, and started a new column. What did they do? Start buying bottied milk instead.
